Do you need to get the job done quickly and economically? Or are you looking for the best possible output? Should your drawing be diazo-reproducible? Will it be stored in the company archive for years to come?

The answers to these questions will determine what drafting supplies you need to produce the kind of results you want. For your convenience, we've come up with four handy guidelines to help you select the right paper and pens for your application.

- 1. When you want a preliminary drawing that doesn't have to be diazo-reproducible, use plotter paper with fiber-tip, roller-ball, or disposable drafting pens.
- 2. When you want a preliminary drawing that does have to be diazo-reproducible, use tracing bond with roller-ball pens.
- 3. When you want a final-quality drawing that has to be diazo-reproducible, use vellum with refillable or disposable drafting pens.
- 4. When you want a final-quality drawing that has to be diazo-reproducible and ready for long-term storage, use polyester film with refillable drafting pens.

Paper

The surface of HP's plotter paper is a fine line definition. It's inexpensive, easy to use, and perfect for everyday use!

- For best results, use with fiber-tip, roller-coosable drafting pens.

Tracing Bond

This lightweight tracing bond is an uncoated, untreated, and economical alternative to vellum.

- For best results, use with the fast plotting capability of roller-ball pens.

Vellum

HP's vellum has a surface coating for increased smoothness and ink receptivity. A less expensive alternative to polyester film, it is also treated for added strength and transparency.

- For best results, use with refillable or disposable drafting pens.

Polyester Film

Our double-matte, 3-mil polyester film is a finely coated, translucent media that minimizes pen and machine wear and maximizes line quality.

- For best results, use with refillable drafting pens.

Tracing bond and roller-ball pens

Vellum and disposable drafting pens

Polyester film and refillable drafting pens

right pens make the difference

no more guesswork
you'll find HP's four pen series for their best applications, and the corresponding international symbols. A symbol appears on each of each pen carousel, so it's easy for you to make the right match.

Fiber-tip pens

Fiber-tip pens come in ten colors
and tip widths for bold and fine lines. They're perfect for your everyday needs and are especially well-suited to area-fill applications.

For best results, use with plotter
paper.

Roller-ball pens

Roller-ball pens offer fast, working-fast, constant line-width plotting.
For best results, use with tracing
paper.

Disposable drafting pens

Disposable drafting pens — in six line widths — are the undisputed choice for one-time, final-quantity plots. And because they use tungsten carbide points, they wear very little. HP also supplies
a cleaning solution, cleaning syringe,
and adapter for use with vellum
film.

Refillable drafting pens

Refillable drafting pens — with replaceable steel tips — are easy to use and require no cleaning or refilling.
For best results, use with vellum
film-quality drawings or paper quality drawings only.
These pens are not designed for use on polyester film.
