
Answers to Your Questions

We stand behind this product. The level of capability provided by advanced technical computer software—together with the rapid evolution of this field—means that you will occasionally have questions which are not answered in the product manual included with this package.

Your Direct Line to Hewlett-Packard

To provide answers to your questions on this software package, HP's Phone-In Software Assistance service is available to you at no charge. You call a Phone-In Software Assistance Center; a phone-in coordinator determines the type of question and arranges for the appropriate HP support representative to call you. Using a full set of Series 200 software and documentation—together with computer knowledge, problem-solving skills, and access to further assistance—the support representative works with you to resolve your question.
